

PROPOSAL

Digital Platform, Booking & Commission Partnership

Prepared for Agorasim — Countryside Experiences & Events

PREPARED FOR

Diogo & Rita

Agorasim

Sintra · Mafra · Ericeira

PREPARED BY

Jamie Nisbet

jamie.nisbet@outlook.be

23 July 2026

The headline: I've cut the build price from €5,900 to €2,000 — a 66% reduction.

In exchange, we move to a light, growth-aligned commission on bookings that leaves you earning more per tour than you do today — while replacing the third party that currently takes €40 a booking.

1. Where we are

Diogo, Rita — thank you for the last few weeks of conversation. You've been clear and fair throughout, and I've listened. The scope we discussed is genuinely valuable, but the €5,900 figure is more than the business should carry as an up-front cost right now. You told me we could look at something on the commission side if I could bring the price down. This proposal does exactly that.

The idea is simple: I lower the up-front fee dramatically, and instead of a third party skimming every booking, a small commission flows to the platform that built and runs your booking engine. Crucially, the numbers below are built so that you keep more of every tour than you do under your current provider — this is not a cost added on top, it's a cheaper replacement for one you already pay.

2. What you're getting — the six features

Every feature we scoped remains in the build. Nothing has been cut to reach the lower price. Here is the full package, with the original itemised value of each piece:

#	FEATURE	WHAT IT DELIVERS	VALUE
1	Website + GEO optimization	A rebuilt, bilingual (PT/EN) agorasim.pt — fast, static and answer-first, engineered to be found and cited by both Google and AI search (JSON-LD, canonical + hreflang).	€1,800
2	AI automated blog	A self-refreshing blog that publishes GEO-tuned articles on the Saloia region and your experiences, keeping the site alive without you writing a word.	€900
3	Instant tour booking via Stripe	Real-time booking and payment on your own site — no third-party redirect, no third-party cut. This is the engine the commission model below runs on.	€1,100
4	Social generator + AI auto-poster	On-brand posts for Instagram & Facebook generated and scheduled automatically, turning tours and seasons into a steady content stream.	€900
5	Email & SMS notifications	Automatic confirmations, reminders and follow-ups to guests over email and SMS — fewer no-shows, a more polished experience.	€600
6	Custom payment links	Bespoke, shareable Stripe payment links for one-off quotes, deposits and balances — the backbone of the car-hire / events flow in section 5.	€600
	Total scoped value	Full package — nothing removed	€5,900

3. The offer — a €2,000 flat fee

The complete six-feature build, delivered for a flat €2,000.

ORIGINAL €5,900	YOUR PRICE €2,000	YOU SAVE €3,900 (66% off)
--------------------	----------------------	---------------------------------

That is not a 10% goodwill trim. It is more than half off — 66% off — €3,900 removed from the up-front cost. I can do that because the reduced fee is paired with the commission model in the next section, which lets me share in the platform's success over time rather than charging it all today.

Payment of the €2,000 can be split — for example 50% to begin and 50% on delivery — whatever sits most comfortably with your cash flow.

4. The commission model — tour bookings

Today a third party sits between you and your guests on a regular day booking. Here's what actually happens to the money:

- The guest pays €470.
- The third party keeps €40.
- Agorasim receives €430 — which is actually €10 below your own €440 price point.

So the current arrangement both overcharges the guest and shortchanges you. Because feature #3 puts booking and payment on your own Stripe-powered site, we cut that third party out entirely.

A commission that scales with the booking

No two tours are the same — price moves with group size, whether it's private or small-group, and which activities are added (Tasco Galapito, Manzwine, Ramilo Wines, Olaria MZ). A flat fee can't handle that: it would gouge a small two-person add-on and barely touch a large private day. So instead of a fixed amount, the platform takes a percentage of whatever the guest actually pays — it simply grows and shrinks with the booking.

COMMISSION RATE	MINIMUM	CAPPED AT
4%	€10	€50
of the booking total	per booking (small add-ons)	per booking (large groups)

At 4%, the commission is well under half the effective ~8.5% the current provider takes on a day booking. The floor keeps tiny bookings viable after processing costs; the cap means a big private group with several activities is never over-charged. Stripe's own processing (~1.5% + €0.25) is the only other deduction.

On your regular day booking, here's how that lands against today:

REGULAR DAY BOOKING	NOW (3rd party)	PROPOSED (Stripe)
Guest pays	€470	€470
Payment processing (Stripe)	included in fee	≈ €7
Commission taken	€40 (8.5%)	≈ €19 (4%)
Agorasim keeps	€430	≈ €444
vs. your €440 target	-€10	+€4

The guest pays exactly what they pay today, yet you keep about €14 more per booking (≈€444 vs €430) and, for the first time, clear your own €440 price point — while the platform's cut is less than half the old one.

The same rule across every kind of booking

Because it's a percentage, one rule covers the whole range — from a short two-person tasting to a full private day with add-ons:

BOOKING SCENARIO	GUEST PAYS	COMMISSION	YOU KEEP*
Couple · one tasting add-on	€150	€10	≈ €138
Small-group day · 2 guests	€470	≈ €19	≈ €444
Private full day · family of 4	€900	€36	≈ €850

BOOKING SCENARIO	GUEST PAYS	COMMISSION	YOU KEEP*
Private day + add-ons · group of 6	€1,400	€50	≈ €1,329

After the 4% commission and Stripe processing. €150 booking meets the €10 floor; €1,400 booking hits the €50 cap (an effective 3.6%).*

Set the guest prices however you like for group size and activities — the commission always follows the final total, so the model never needs re-negotiating when your pricing changes. If you'd ever rather pass savings to guests than take the extra margin, the room is there; my recommendation is to hold your prices and simply keep more.

5. Car hire for weddings & events

Car hire is a different animal from a day tour: higher value, booked further ahead, and it needs a date held with a deposit and a balance settled before the event. Feature #6 (custom payment links) is built for exactly this. It follows the same percentage logic as tours — just at a rate set for the extra coordination each event carries.

How a booking flows

- Deposit to reserve the date — 30% of the total, taken via a custom Stripe payment link, non-refundable inside a set window.
- Balance due 14 days before the event, collected by a second automatic payment link.
- Confirmations, reminders and the balance request go out automatically over email & SMS (feature #5).

Commission on car hire

A platform commission of 6% of the booking value, with Stripe's processing passed through. The higher rate than tours reflects the extra coordination, custom quoting and payment-link handling each event needs — and it still leaves the overwhelming majority of a premium booking with you.

EXAMPLE — WEDDING CAR HIRE	€800 booking	€1,500 booking
Guest pays	€800	€1,500
Platform commission (6%)	€48	€90
Stripe processing (≈1.5%)	≈ €12	≈ €23
Agorasim keeps	≈ €740	≈ €1,387

6. Why this is fair to everyone

A commission only works long-term if it's honest. Here's the reasoning laid bare, plus the safeguards that keep you in control.

Aligned incentives

By dropping €3,900 off the price, I'm effectively investing in Agorasim's growth. At roughly €20 commission on a typical day booking, it takes on the order of 200 bookings before that discount is recovered — which means I only come out ahead if the platform actually brings you more bookings. The GEO site, the auto-blog and the social poster all exist to do precisely that. Your success and mine are pointed the same way.

Your safeguards

- Still cheaper than today. Tour commission is 4% (≈€19 on a day booking) vs the €40 a third party takes now — and a percentage is fairer than their flat fee at every booking size.
- No hidden fees. The commission and Stripe's processing are the only deductions. No monthly platform charge, no lock-in subscription.
- Buy-out option. At any time you can end the commission by settling the difference back toward the original build price — if the business booms and you'd rather own it outright, that door stays open.
- Reviewed at 24 months. We revisit the rates together after two years and adjust to whatever the business looks like then.
- You hold the keys. It's your Stripe account, your domain, your data. The commission is a fee on the service, not a claim on your business.

7. Summary

Up-front build	€2,000 flat for all six features (was €5,900 — 66% off)
Tour bookings	4% of the booking total (min €10, cap €50) — ≈€19 on a day booking vs the €40 taken today
Car hire & events	6% of booking value · 30% deposit + balance 14 days out, via custom payment links
Safeguards	No monthly fee · buy-out option any time · reviewed at 24 months · your accounts & data

This keeps the whole vision intact, takes the up-front weight off the business, and leaves you earning more per booking than you do today. I'm confident it works for all of us — and I'm happy to adjust any single number until it feels right. Just say the word and I'll start the build.

Jamie Nisbet · jamie.nisbet@outlook.be